Today the ladies of the First Presbyterian church will have the use of Mr. H. H. Stevens' livery business. The gross receipts of the day's business will be applied to the building fund of the church.

The readings by Dr. S. E. Solly at the the First Methodist church last night were listened to by a large and appreciative audience. Barnes' orchestra was present and furnished excellent music.

Mr. F. H. Gay opened for business in his new quarters at No. 9 South Tejon street yesterday morning. Owing to the increased size of his store room, he will carry a much larger stock of boots and shoes than heretofore.

An order has been given for the immediate delivery of sufficient water pipe to extend throughout all the alleys of Parrish's addition east of Chestnut street. The contract has been let for the laying of the pipe as soon as it is delivered.

Mr. A. L. Lawton has sold to Mr. Joseph G. Harvey two lots on the west side of Weber street between Bijou street and Platte avenue, and four lots in West Colorado Springs. Mr. Harvey expects to build a residence on his Weber street property. Mr. Lawton has also sold to Mr. Charles Kinney four lots in West Colorado Springs, and the Adams cottage on East Pike's Peak avenue. Messrs. Kinney and Harvey at present reside at Topeka, Kas., and are prominent railroad contractors. They expect to make this city their permanent home.

Mr. W. H. Tucker, who has been connected with the grocery establishment of Nichols & Long for several years, has accepted a position with the wholesale grocery establishment of H. C. Lowe & Co., on Pike's Peak avenue. The firm will occupy the two eastern stores in the Hughes, Bradbury and Hagerman block, on Pike's Peak avenue, and it will do a strictly wholesale business. The firm will make a vigorous effort to secure the trade of the southern and western portions of the state. A large invoice of groceries has been received, and everything will be in readiness for business in a few days.

The trials of the postponed liquor cases against O. H. Barney and C. W. Church began before Police Magistrate Shideler on Saturday afternoon and were completed yesterday afternoon. The evidence was furnished by three Denver parties, who testified that they had purchased liquor without prescriptions in less quantities than a quart, and upon prescriptions not properly filled out. The magistrate found the accused both guilty, and assessed fines and costs amounting to $1900 against them. Both parties have given notice of an appeal to the county court.

Under Sheriff Saxton and Deputy Sheriff Brazleton of Colorado City were yesterday looking for a man by the name of Holt, who violently assaulted a man at Colorado City on Saturday night. The victim of the affair was the aggressor and applied an opprobrious epithet to Holt. The latter then began to pound his head with a stone, and left him very much bruised. It was thought that his injuries were not of a very serious nature, and Holt was not arrested. Late Sunday afternoon the condition of the wounded man grew worse, and fears of his death were entertained. A search for Holt revealed the fact that he had left Colorado City, and at last accounts he had not been found.

Yesterday the articles of incorporation of the Lincoln, Denver and Colorado Railway company were filed with the county clerk. The object of the company is to construct, build and operate a line of railway from the southern boundary line of Nebraska at about 39° 30', to River Bend, on the line of the Kansas Pacific railroad, and from thence to Colorado Springs. The incorporators of the road are J. K. Choate, Scott Bryan, Willard Teller, H. M. Orahood and A. H. Fowler, all of Denver. The little value placed upon pure water by the democratic hosts is amply shown by the choice of St Louis as the meeting place of the national convention The supply of malt stimulants is said to be unlimited, and the glasses are larger than the ordinary size.

English politics at the present writing seems to be considerably mixed This can be accounted for by the fact that a number of so called prominent English politicians have been dividing their time between 'Buffalo Bill John L Sullivan and the elephant faced man In the presence of these 'dignitaries the affairs of the empire were of secondary importance

The selfishness shown by the English and American press in discussing the fishery treaty is quite remarkable The former contend that the treaty is a total surrender of English interests while the latter state that it is the worst exhibition of American diplomacy ever placed before a dishonored people Comparatively little has as yet been heard from those engaged in the fishery business in either Canada or the United States In this instance there seems to be a rivalry to show which nation has surrendered the most rights

Colonel William R. Morrison has intimated that if Illinois is to be honored with a place on the national democratic ticket that he is willing to sacrifice himself for the interests of his party and be content the candidate for vice president Mr. Morrison's unselfish offer should not be rejected, for within the past few years he has become so accustomed to defeat, that he could bear defeat with good grace How Mr Morris in would act, under the inspiration of success is an enigma The country and Mr Morrison's immediate constituents are apparently unwilling to expose him to the influences of an inspiration produced under such circumstances

San Francisco, it is said was not selected as the place for holding the democratic national convention because a surplus of oratory was feared If the following sentence from the speech of Colonel Tarpey, in urging the claims of San Francisco was a specimen of the kind of oratory which would be inflicted upon the convention, no mistake was made in rejecting that city He declared that if San Francisco was chosen "the fires of patriotism that would be lighted on the pinnacles of the Sierra Nevada by the gentlemen who would assemble in convention and ratify the nominee would be carried triumphantly as flambeaux by gentlemen on the returning march until the blaze was quenched in the waters of the Atlantic

Congressman William Scott of Pennsylvania is rapidly coming to the front as a democratic leader He seems to be on particularly friendly terms with the administration and it was through his influence and personal efforts that St Louis was chosen as the place for holding the democratic national convention and the date changed from July 3d to June 5th Mr Scott is believed to have his eyes on the Pennsylvania senatorship but the chances of his success are so small as to be nearly if not totally invisible In the judgment of the great unterrified Mr Scott has the one single qualification for democratic leadership 'a bar), and within the past year he has allowed it to be quite freely tapped The democrats will never worry themselves about a reduction of the surplus of campaign funds

Suggestions on Tree Planting

The following circular has recently been issued by the state forest commissioner

OFFICE OF THE FORESTY COMMISSIONER OF THE STATE OF COLORADO
DENVER February 4th 1888

Next in importance to the preservation of our mountain forests is the growing of artificial forests groves and shelter belts For the information and encouragement of Timber Culture claimants and others in this state practically interested in the subject of tree growing, the following suggestions are offered

PREPARATION OF THE SOIL

A deep and thorough preparation of the soil is essential to successful forest tree culture Unless the ground has already been brought under cultivation it should be broken and used for a year or two in the growing of some hoed crop that is being cultivated to kill grass because it seems for the time just the treatment it needs in fit it for tree culture

WHEN AND HOW TO PLANT

In this state the spring of the year is usually the best season for planting the particular time or season in each instance to be governed by attending circumstances

Under the timber culture act not less than twenty seven hundred trees must be planted to the acre of which at least six hundred and seventy per acre must be growing at the time of making final proof.

The best authorities recommend in planting the trees set three feet apart each way Forest trees when planted rise slowly the ground and lightly and keep down weeds for the first and straight just as the branches begin to spread Leaves or mulch shelter from drying winds hold the snow and soon establish a forest condition Nature produces forests by planting chiefly and helps by the survival of the fittest

Horace Greeley said Plant thickly and of divers kinds, so as to cover the ground promptly and choke out weeds and shrubs with full purpose to thin and prune as circumstances may dictate

FOREST CULTURE WITHOUT IRRIGATION

An experienced arboriculturist writes us as follows concerning the growing of trees in arid and semi arid districts where water cannot be had for irrigation

A correspondent who has a timber culture claim on government land in the eastern part of the state asks Can timber be grown here without irrigation

We answer, it certainly can But we must reverse the system of eastern tree culture There our trouble existed in the excess of surface moisture requiring drainage from the trees In preparing for tree planting the land was deeply plowed thrown up into narrow headlands and the trees planted on the highest part so the surface water would run off from the trees into the middle a 'dead furrow' and be carried from the field

Here we must adopt a system of surface drainage to the trees This is done by planting on a slope thrown by standing on the headland By reversing this order of planting trees not only receive the benefit of the rainfall but the snows drift into this dead furrow protecting the trees through the winter and thoroughly soaking the ground when melting in the spring In addition leaves and all manner of decaying vegetables drift and collect in this low ground forming a valuable mulch to retain moisture

WHAT TO PLANT

Among the hardier forest trees recommended for planting in this state especially in the plains region are the cotton wood (broad leaved) balm of gilead Russian mulberry American white ash black locust honey locust western gray willow and wild black cherry In localities south of the Arkansas Platte divide the osage orange and catalpa speciosa might be tried It is probable also, that a fair degree of success might be attained with some of the native species common to dry and exposed portions of the foothills and mesas as for instance Cedar scrub oak and pinon which might be propagated from the seed Where irrigation is practicable the hickory butternut black walnut white elm linden box elder and other varieties of maple are likely to do well

SELECTION OF SEEDS CUTTINGS, ETC

Great care should be used in the selection of seeds cuttings or seedlings to insure choice varieties and healthful condition Seeds should be tested thoroughly before planting to determine the presence or absence of vitality

CULTIVATION

While the preparation of the ground and planting are necessary and important processes let it not be forgotten that subsequent care and cultivation are requisite to final success Some recommend mulching the young trees after planting others say that persistent and continuous cultivation is better

DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION

It is very desirable to learn what species of trees are best adapted to the trying conditions of our plains region and to determine the best methods of cultivation, etc —Any facts or information which may be obtained upon these subjects, or the result of experiments made in that connection, if transmitted to this office will be disseminated for the common good. EDGAR T ENSIGN
Commissioner

OLDEST METHODIST IN AMERICA

Mrs. Elizabeth Weaver Hendrickson, of Duquoin, Ills.

The oldest living Methodist in America is Mrs Elizabeth Weaver Hendrickson of Duquoin, Ills Her age is 101 years She was born but two years before the close of the American revolution and was about 14 years old when Washington died. South Carolina is her native state At Chester she first caught a glimpse of the world, on the 7th of November, 1786 Her father was Victor Weaver, so well known in Tennessee and Kentucky as 'shouting' Victor Weaver, an exhorter of the Methodist church.

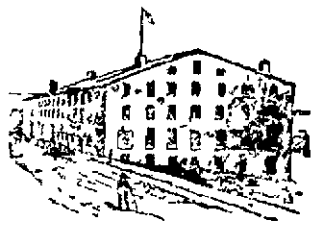
MRS. HENDRICKSON

Her husband was John Hendrickson, a Methodist preacher They migrated to Tennessee and thence to Illinois in 1820, the year that Gens Robert E. Lee and Joseph E. Johnston completed their course and took brevet second lieutenancies in the United States army at a time when people traveled in winter over the Illinois prairies in sledges when Chicago was Fort Dearborn The oldest son is now 70 years old but she had living on her 100th birthday 5 children and 385 grand, great and great-great-grandchildren For ninety years Mrs. Hendrickson has been an earnest worker in the Methodist church Doubtless during that time the influence she has exerted is incalculable

GOING TO CHICAGO

Will Old Libby Prison Be Taken Away from Richmond?

Nobody knows where American enterprise will end and nobody can conjecture what new turn it will take Here we have a plan to move that relic of war times the famous old Libby prison, from Richmond to Chicago and make it into a money making machine. The old building will be torn down brick by brick, timber by timber and nail by nail the pieces numbered shipped to Chicago and put together again It is going to be surrounded by a larger building, on the interior of the walls of which will be painted a panorama of the scenery about the prison as it stands in Richmond and filled with war relics. The whole will be an interesting thing to see as well as and very amusement for the Lake city It will take $400 000 to buy the old prison and install it in its new quarters But the gentlemen who have gone into the enterprise confidently assert that it is going to pay At any rate the historic old building will be preserved for many years



LIBBY PRISON

However this project may fail with fully as much opposition as in investment Those who are not in its favor protest that nothing could be done that would tend to so perpetuate sectional feeling as to transport Libby and suggest rather that it be utterly destroyed from the face of the earth
